

VHS or MINI DV TAPE to DVD AUDIO CASSETTE OR CD TO CD TRANSFERS & DUPLICATION SERVICES

Nothing really lasts forever. However, audio cassette and VHS tapes can seriously degrade over time when they are played (stretching, data loss) or just stored (weather). Sometimes they just break. Though we can't guarantee it will "last forever" we can do a direct copy of your VHS tapes to DVD and preserve what you have at its current quality for future generations. DVDs were introduced in 1993 and first offered in the US in 1997. It is still a relatively new technology.

DVDs are easy to store and easy to duplicate. CDs and DVDs do not degrade over time and usage the way VHS tapes do when properly stored (like not in direct sunlight, or in your freezer) and handled (like keep your fingers off the shiny side.) Although it is claimed that DVDs can have a lifespan of 50 to 100 years or more, we submit that is under ideal conditions and probably that means no one touches it and it never gets played or never leaves the machine. We can't guarantee that for you. Therefore, we suggest always having a backup of everything - just as you do (we hope) with your electronic data on your computer. This is why when we duplicate CDs or DVDs, you get TWO of every duplication at no additional charge. We want to be sure your memories last. We offer additional copies for family, friends and associates at the pricing shown below.

Many digital video cameras use mini DV tape. Tape is still tape. Although the initial quality is far superior to VHS, mini DV tapes are also subject to diminished quality caused by time and temperature.

We offer a simple pricing package for standard real time copying (real time means no menus, no editing, an exact tape to DVD copy of your original video). If you wish to have your video edited, our charges are $60 per hour. If you need more than one copy, we offer simple pricing for that, too. Plus, we can duplicate your current CDs and DVDs as well. We guarantee your CD/DVD quality will be at least as good as the audio or VHS tape quality but we do not make any claims that the quality will be better than the original.

Price includes your DVD information (Title, Date, Name, etc.) inkjet-printed directly to the surface, in black ink. One color ink adds $0.25 per CD/DVD; full color printing with graphics adds $1.00 per CD/DVD. We NEVER use paper labels on DVDs. We use Taiyo Uden DVDs. Never heard of them? Well, that's because you can't buy them retail. These are what Pro's use. You get the BEST! Look for the blue tint. Accept No Substitutes!
